THE ORIGINAL

Hoosier Schoolmaster Once Taught in Jackson County.

Edward Eggleston's original "Hoosier Schoolmaster" is now a citizen of Fort Wayne. He lives on the south side and is engaged in business in that city.

J. B. McDonald, a Hoosier, measuring six feet in his stocking feet, was teaching school in Jackson county, Ind., when Edward Eggleston visited that section of the country in search of material for his novel. Mr. McDonald has long given up the use of the birch and McGuffey's readers, and instead has gone into other business, yet he tells many interesting stories of his work in the old days "back in Injanny." The characters of Bud and Miranda are still alive and were pupils of Mr. McDonald. While in a business house recently, and waiting to see some one about a proposition, Mr. McDonald met one of his scholars, who lives here and is a railroad man. The greeting was a happy one, and after talking together for several minutes the two men departed to meet again within the next few days.—Ft. Worth Register.

Conduct Criticised.

It is a matter of much regret that the boys of our high school foot ball team should have brought upon themselves so much criticism of their conduct in Seymour last Saturday, after the record they have maintained up to that time and when so much was expected of them, instead of making a score of 60 to 0 which they could easily have done with the proper effort the score stood 0 to 0. It is said a general shaking up is to take place and the management thought seriously for a time of cancelling the remainder of the schedule, but instead of doing this they have retired two or three of the boys and will complete the season.—Franklin Rep.

Dogs Cost $79,912.34.

Sheep-killing dogs, according to reports made to the State Bureau of Statistics, cost the various counties in the State during the year of 1907 a total of $79,912.34. The reports show also that 9,214 head of sheep in all were either killed or injured by dogs during the year. Over one third of the total dog tax collected was paid out for sheep killed by dogs. In some counties most all of the dog tax collected was expended in this way.

The total dog tax collected in the State during the year 1907 was $192,288.70.

Falls Over Bicycle.

Miss Grace Leslie, an employe at the REPUBLICAN office, fell over a bicycle Friday evening that had been left lying on the sidewalk in front of Stanfield and Carlson's Hardware store on West Second street. Her arm was hurt very badly and she spent a restless night. There seems to be no fracture, but her injuries are such that she was unable to work today.

Short of Water.

Over at North Vernon they are still having trouble to supply enough water to meet the demand. The temporary reservoir made to bridge over the "dry spell" is almost dry and the Muscattuck at that point is so low that not much can be drawn from it.

Over at Bloomington they have been short on water for a long time and the situation is growing serious. If they should have a fire there of any consequence they would not be able to cope with it on account of the short water supply.

At Jasonville they have had to shut down the light plant because the supply of water is not sufficient to supply the boilers at the power station. The city is in darkness and will be until there is a big rain.

Working a New Game.

The slickest and latest fraud on farmers is thus worked: An alleged clergyman stops with some prosperous farmer over night. During the evening a knock comes at the door, finds a bashful young couple who want to be married. They had heard there was a clergyman in the neighborhood and would like to have him marry them at once. The "holy man" demurs, but the farmer and his wife, having once been young themselves, beg the preacher to help the young folks out. The bridegroom produces a "marriage license," which the farmer signs—without reading. A few weeks later the farmer receives notice from a bank that holds his note for $500. He had put his name to a skillfully worded promise to pay. The two men and the woman are partners in roguery.

Watch The Starry Plunge.

In the early morning hours of November 14th to 16th those bright, swiftly moving, shooting stars may be observed which dart outward in all directions from the constellation of Leo. It will be remembered that this shower is caused by the earth plowing through a great stream of meteoric stars which revolve about the sun in the path of the comet captured by Uranus 2,000 years ago. While it is not expected that the brilliant display of 1833 and 1868, when the earth encountered the densest part of the swarm, will be repeated, the shower is, nevertheless, still the brightest of the shooting stars will probably escape detection.

Convention.

On December 2 and 3, 1908, at rooms 11 and 12 State House, Indianapolis, Indiana, the fruit growers, truckers, gardeners, and other horticulturists, will meet in annual convention. The meeting promises to be of unusual interest, as vital problems which confront the horticultural interest will come up for consideration.

Kills Big Eagle.

Carl Keesling, a farmer living at Stone's Crossing, south of Indianapolis, has killed an eagle measuring eight feet from tip to tip. It weighed about fifteen pounds. When he first saw it he mistook it for a huge chicken hawk and brought it down with a shotgun.

A number of the local members of the American Salvation Army went to North Vernon this morning to hold services today.

Football.

The Seymour High School football team went to Brownstown this morning where they are playing the Brownstown High School this afternoon. Brownstown has played more games this year than Seymour and has won a larger per cent of their games but the Seymour High School is confident of victory since they have been playing so much stronger teams.

Brownstown lost to Salem by a score of 23 to 0, lost one game with Paoli and won the other, tied with Hayden and won from Scottsburg 24 to 0. Total gained 2 games, lost 2, tied 1.

Seymour won from North Vernon 10 to 6, lost one game with Franklin 2 to 0 and tied the other, lost to the Louisville Manual Training High School 56 to 0.

It is claimed that the Brownstown team is ten or fifteen pounds heavier to the man than the Seymour team but the latter hope to make up this difference in weight by their skill, speed and endurance.

The Seymour lineup for this afternoon is as follows:

The Seymour team is crippled some by the absence of two of their regular players. Prof. Edwards accompanied the boys to Brownstown and will probably act as one of the officials of the game. About twenty went down for the game this morning, including the team, and our boys will not be without the assistance of some lusty "rooters." The Seymour team will play their third game with the Franklin High School at Franklin next Friday afternoon.

Franklin High School is playing Shelbyville High School at Shelbyville this afternoon. Only about a week and a half till Thanksgiving and the work of most of the teams up to that time will have determined their standing for the season. If Seymour can defeat Brownstown today and Franklin next Friday she will have raised her standing a long way.

How The Fire Started.

The fire in the Husted cottage at the corner of Fifth and Broadway Thursday afternoon, seems to have been caused by a block of wood that was left lying on top of the stove flue. This checked the draft at the top and as the flue was bad below it made a draft at a lower opening which caused the fire. Jasper Baker, had moved there only recently and had just put up the heating stove in that room. Mr. Baker moved here about three months ago from Cincinnati. He has been employed now and then with the Seymour Manufacturing Company and got a steady job there only last week. One of his children has just recovered from the typhoid. Mrs. Baker has been sick and Mr. Baker himself is a cripple. Because of his misfortunes he has called on some of our people for assistance and has received encouragement. So far as we have investigated the family seems to be worthy and persons who are charitably inclined would do well to investigate.

Sherman Trusts in Women.

At Utica, N. Y., Tuesday, Vice President-elect James S. Sherman delivered an address at the annual convention of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs. He said among other things:

"I felt throughout the land in the recent campaign the influence of women. Women are equally well qualified with men to exercise the right of franchise if men saw fit to grant it. They are a power in public affairs in this country of ours, because they are always found putting full force in movements to promote the public welfare and morals. Women are a power because they have higher ideals than mankind as a whole."

Funeral.

The remains of Mrs. B. A. Goodale arrived here from Centerville, Fla., Friday night on the midnight train over the B. & O. S-W. and were taken to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Trotter at Pine and McDonald streets. The funeral will be held at the residence Sunday afternoon at one o'clock and will be in charge of the Rev. F. M. Huckleberry. Burial at Riverview cemetery.

OPENING TONIGHT

Harmony Hall, the New Store, Ready For Business.

"Harmony Hall," Wiethoff & Kernan's new music store, will be opened to the public this evening. They have been very busy all week getting their new fixtures and new goods in place. Some of the goods purchased has not yet arrived, which is disappointing to them, yet they will not delay the opening on that account.

An orchestra of five pieces has been engaged for the evening and besides Miss Frieda Aufderheide will play on the violin a new piece composed by herself. Don Bollinger will also play some of his own composition.

This new store presents a nice appearance and everybody is invited to call during the evening. Open at 7:30. The location is in the Blish building, corner of Chestnut street and St. Louis avenue.

A TROUBLESOME PLANT.

Government Spending Thousands Trying to Control Water Hyacinth.

The water hyacinth, the beautiful marine plant of green leaves and exquisite flowers, which has done such great damage to commerce in Louisiana and east Texas, is making its appearance in the ship channel.

A few years ago, says the Houston Post, the water hyacinth was brought from Florida to Louisiana as a floral ornament. Last year the government expended $200,000 in an effort to control the pest and has only partly succeeded.

Streams and bayous which once carried big barges of lumber in Louisiana and eastern Texas have been closed to navigation by the rank vegetation of the hyacinth.

The Sabine river above Orange has become filled with the plants, and it is related that these all grew from a few plants carelessly thrown into the river by some housewife when the plants she had in a tub as an ornament became too numerous.

The matter has been brought to the attention of the city authorities, and steps have already been taken to destroy before it is too late all the hyacinths at Sam Houston park and those which have got into the bayou. A boat is to be sent along the lower reaches and all hyacinths carefully gathered and destroyed. It is anticipated that there may be some legislative action prohibiting the growing of these plants near a navigable stream and punishing any one so careless as to throw any of them into a stream which is of any use for any purpose.

He Took It.

While James H. Beard, the artist, was painting a portrait of Zachary Taylor he said to him, "Well, general, I suppose you are to be our next president?"

"I hope not," grunted the bluff old hero. "No military man has any business in the presidential chair, but if they offer it to me I suppose I'll be fool enough to accept it."

And he was.

DIED.

HUNSUCKER—Josiah L. Hunsucker died at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Matlock in this city Friday, November 13, at 9 p. m. His health had been on the decline for some time. He came here five weeks ago and his condition was quite critical then. The deceased was the oldest son of Samuel Hunsucker, of Vallonia, and was born at Vallonia March 5, 1868. His age was 40 years, 8 months and 8 days. He was united in marriage with Cora Matlock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Matlock, of this city September 17, 1893, who with three children, Harley, Irene and Freda, survive him. He attended school at Lebanon, Ohio, Danville, Ind., and the Normal at Mitchell and for twelve years was one of the successful school teachers of Jackson county. Eight years ago when the Medora State Bank was organized he was elected cashier which position he held until the time of his death. He was an upright citizen and a good business man. He had a wide acquaintance throughout the county and was held in high esteem by a host of friends.

Funeral services at Vallonia Sunday November 15, at 1 p. m. Interment at Riverview cemetery at Seymour on Monday, November 16, at 9:30 a. m. Funeral in charge of the Medora Lodge, F. & A. M., assisted by the Vallonia K. of P. lodge. Sermon by Rev. Harley Jackson.

May Bloom Tonight.

Mrs. Harry C. Jones has a night blooming cereus, the name we apply to the Cereus grandiflorus, which will bloom tonight or tomorrow night. Several people in Seymour have these plants but this is the only one that has been known to bloom so late in the season. Mrs. Jones has been nursing it and keeping it in a warm place so that the bud would mature a little.

Chopped His Foot.

John Spurling, son of Newt Spurling, had the misfortune to cut his foot very badly while cutting wood on Mrs. Mary J. Adams farm near Reddington a day or two ago. A deep gash was made on the top of the foot and the young man was very much weakened by the loss of blood.

Taft and Bryan Votes.

Taft carried thirty states and Bryan sixteen Taft's plurality on the popular vote is 1,025,000.

In 1896 Bryan carried twenty-two states and was beaten on the popular vote by 142,359. In 1900 he carried seventeen states and was beaten on the popular vote by 468,240. Every time he runs he gets weaker.

A Little Snow.

Today is the nearest approach to real winter we have had this season. The atmosphere is quite chilly and there was a little snow this afternoon.

Entertained.

Graham St. John, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. St. John, entertained about twenty-five boys and girls with a party Friday evening at his home on North Chestnut street. After playing games and being well entertained in other ways for some time Graham brought all his little friends down to Dreamland where they witnessed the moving picture, "Duty Versus Revenge" and the illustrated song by Miss Anna Carter. During the evening Mrs. St. John and her assistants served a two course lunch. The young people enjoyed the evening very much and have many words of praise for the hospitality of their host and the splendid arrangements for the evening of pleasure and entertainment.

SEYMOUR, INDIANA.

The President has a good write hand.

The man who isn't satisfied until he is married isn't always satisfied then.

The czar is said to have a dozen crowns. His head lies uneasy enough with one.

Ethel Barrymore wants to marry a poor man. Her matrimonial market is overstocked.

The peace of the world is said to be in the kaiser's hand. The trouble is it is a mailed hand.

In order to love his enemy as himself a man has to get rid of a good deal of self conceit.

Some one is trying to enjoy a "mechanical piano player." Isn't this an attack on the rights of labor?

A man who shaved Lincoln complains that he is absolutely out of a job today. How perfectly barbarous.

Fortunately for human happiness, only the courts insist on hearing the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

The end of the honeymoon is well in sight when a man complains of the number of buttons on the back of his wife's blouse.

The man who stays in the well-trodden path to success usually finds that someone has got there ahead of him by cutting across lots.

Now that it has been discovered that sweet potatoes make an excellent brain food, some philanthropist should work to have the price reduced.

A Colorado woman married the man set upon her track by her former husband. This is a plot which writers of comedy appear to have overlooked.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is working for $6 a week. It will be extremely difficult for the sons of Pittsburgh millionaires to understand why he does it.

The agricultural department has discovered rats that are afflicted with pathogenic haemogregarine hepatozoon perniciosis. This is even worse than arterio-sclerosis.

It took Nat Goodwin eleven minutes to get his divorce. If the judge had consumed two minutes more Nat would probably have refused to accept it. Actors are superstitious.

As Mr. Roosevelt leaves the White House on March 4 perhaps Kermit will be allowed to play through the football season of 1900 with all the comfortable privacy which any other American boy has as a matter of course.

One of the most notable features of the history of the last ten years has been the confidence that the Cubans have steadily shown in their big neighbor, and in the good feeling between the two that has existed without a break ever since the American flag was raised over Cuba.

"A Word for the Celluloid Collar" is the title of an editorial in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. We have not taken the trouble to read it, but we suppose it is a treatise on the best methods to be adopted by the men of St. Louis for the purpose of keeping their celluloid collars from blowing up in hot weather.

The forestry service of the Department of Agriculture has been experimenting with poisons on the predaceous prairie-dog. An area of seventy-five acres in one of the national reserves was sown with poisoned wheat, and the prairie-dogs reaped the crop at once. It is hoped that the experiments will lead to the extermination of a pest that looks "cute" and innocent, but does much damage.

Even a calamity like the August floods develops compensations, and one such is revealed in the heroism of a telephone operator, Mrs. S. F. Rooke. Seasonably notified that rising waters threatened the little town of Folsom, New Mexico, she put aside her own opportunity to escape, and spent her last hour of life in warning and saving her subscribers. What they lost in property is comparatively immaterial. They gained, they and the world, the abiding inspiration of a deed of unselfish devotion.

The progress of the world toward cheaper postal exchanges has been marvelously rapid. In the case of the United States a little more than half a century has seen the development of the service brought to such a point that we now enjoy for 2 cents that which at the middle of the nineteenth century cost twenty times that sum! Moreover, the country is already considering seriously the wisdom of a reduction of the domestic rate to 1 cent. And who can doubt that the closer communications that will inevitably be brought about by the Anglo-American "penny" postal agreement will stimulate the rapid spread of the system until it shall become universal? It is possible to overestimate the purely sentimental effects of such a linking of the peoples of distant lands, but there is ample experience to justify the assertion that any step which facilitates the inter-communication will infallibly strengthen the bonds of permanent peace.

Philadelphia has been celebrating. With a feast of days it recalled the achievements of two centuries and a quarter of local history. If the actual beginnings of settlement were considered nearly fifty more years would be added to the record. For the Swedes laid the foundations as early as 1636. But the incoming of the Germans at the urging of William Penn has been taken as the event which made the future in the province sure. The 225 years since the founding of Germantown were the ones passed in review by means of public meetings and pageantry. It is natural that the quickened interest in the story of Pastorius and the German and Dutch Mennonites whom he led to Germantown in 1683 should be attended by celebrations in Chicago and in many other places of the beginnings of German influence in America. One does not read far without a conviction that there was a marked difference between these first colonists from "the fatherland" and those who came later in the great migrations. The real effective and powerful influence of the German element of American population came later. None the less the occasion was an appropriate one for a genuine revival of German feeling and an enthusiastic appreciation of the importance of the contribution to the cosmopolitan character of the people of the United States made from this source. The addition of strength which this race element brought cannot be overestimated. A liberty loving stock, thousands of them have found homes in America to prove themselves as devoted to the land of their adoption as to the sentimental affection which they ever have retained for the ancestral country celebrated in poetry and song. The German in Pennsylvania was a pioneer. He followed right behind the Scotch-Irishman as that hardy son of the north penetrated the wilderness to the west and south. Wherever the "Pennsylvania Dutch" appeared as settlers the forest gave place to the farm and the wild animals receded before the oncoming of civilization. The name given them in derision became a symbol of industrious and contented citizenship. If Philadelphia and Pennsylvania paid due respect to these pioneers alone, city and state would find plenty of reason for the honors extended. In the larger view of German influence on the United States the record of the years tells its own story of the debt of the nation to this one of the strong elements in its life blood.

Medals for Bravery.

Uncle Sam is not averse to bestowing decorations, says the Philadelphia Press. While the constitution prohibits government officers from accepting orders from foreign governments, the President has the power to award insignia, which mean considerably more than most of the stars, garters, etc., of the old world. These are medals for bravery.

Besides the medals for conspicuous bravery in battle and the decorations for life saving on the water, the chief executive can honor men and women who display heroism on the railroad lines of the country.

Award of the decorations is made by the chief executive on recommendation from the interstate commerce commission. Applications must be accompanied by affidavits from eyewitnesses of the heroic deeds, and they must be approved by a committee of five of the commissioners.

A bronze medal and a button of gold and enamel are the insignia given.

The medal is about as big as a silver dollar. On one side, the obverse, there is a figure of a man upon a railway track, with one knee upon a rock which blocks an approaching train. He is warning the trainmen by means of a brand.

On the reverse side is a laurel wreath, symbolical of heroism. The inscription, "The United States Medal for Life Saving on Railroads," appears near the medal's rim, and within the wreath is the following: "For Bravery. Awarded to—"

Penance for Discourtesy.

Nicholas I. Czar of Russia, was the type of an absolute aristocrat. The succession of terrible wars which clouded his reign did not tend to soften his disposition or to render him less imperious. But rough and harsh as he was, Nicholas had a measure of chivalry in his disposition. He would not tolerate under any circumstances an insult offered a woman. As the Czar was driving through the streets of St. Petersburg he caught sight of an officer of his household in the act of upsetting an old beggar woman whose hands were raised in a prayer for alms. The officer was quite unmindful of the august witness of his act and was rather pleased when, a few hours later, he was summoned to the imperial presence. Nicholas soon undeceived him, and in the presence of a dozen courtiers cut him to the quick with his indignant reproach.

"Enough!" said Nicholas finally. "You will walk up and down that corridor all night, and every time you turn you will say in a loud voice: 'I am a puppy. I am a puppy.'"

Love with a young man is never so serious as with a young girl, because he has his moustache to distract his attention.

Silage in Steer Feeding.

The use of silage in feeding steers while fattening is growing in favor steadily, and especially where lands are high priced and when feeding stuffs generally are high. There has been a good deal of prejudice against silage among extensive feeders, but as they are induced to try it so do they become converted to its use.

In feeding experiments conducted at the Missouri Station in 1900-7 with steers weighing about 800 pounds each at the beginning, those fed silage ate less dry matter than those fed whole stover or shredded stover, and gained in weight, while the dry stover lots lost. The same sort of results were also secured from feeding silage stover compared with air-dried material.

Professor Plumb, of the Ohio Agricultural College, has this to say on the subject:

"If silage is fed under cover, and to cattle not wallowing in mud or oozy manure, then good results will generally come from its use. However, hay or other dry roughage should also be fed. Silage fed twice a day and hay once should give good results. When cattle are being finished for shipment, then the amount of silage fed should be reduced and the dry roughage increased, this to prevent much shrinkage in shipping. However, in what is known as rational feeding, but little shrinkage is apt to occur from the use of the silage. In experiments with steers fed different rations at the Virginia Station, those fed silage showed no appreciable shrinkage in the market over those fed exclusively dry feed."

Crib Without a Shovel.

This grain storage house is designed to allow for handling the crop without unnecessary lifting. Grain is hauled in the upper drive and poured from the wagons into the bins, and is then removed by being drained from the bins into the wagons in the lower driveway. If built upon a hillside the job of making the fills will not be serious. Even on level ground this can be done without a great expenditure of labor with the use of a road scraper.

The entire building must be raised upon piers about 4 ft. high, so that the bottom of the bins is not much lower than the bottom of the wagon box, allowing the entire contents of the bins to be drained into the wagons without lifting.—Farm and Home.

Tuberculosis in Cattle of England.

Consul Joseph G. Stephens of Plymouth, advises that the English authorities are making known through the medium of the press the disagreeable facts relative to tuberculosis in cows and phthisis in human beings in that section of England. The relation of the two is said to be a scientific fact. In many districts of Devon 25 per cent of the cows have tuberculosis. The average number of deaths from consumption among the people of the single County of Devon alone exceeds 300 per annum. In one charity organization 80 per cent of the children are suffering from this dread disease.

The Poultry House.

Now is a good time to disinfect the poultry house, so as to keep the lice from getting a mastery over you. Any kind of liquid lice killer is good to spray the house with, being sure to spray the roosts and nest boxes as well. If a cheaper disinfectant is required, a whitewash can be made of lime and water, with some crude carbolic acid in it. This proves a very good deodorizer and disinfectant, and a large quantity of it can be used without hurting the pocketbook too severely.

Lack of Material.

The laying of soft-shelled eggs is caused by lack of shell-making material, in the shape of crushed oyster shells or some other form of lime. The hens should have plenty of good grit. Half the time the fowls are left without a good supply of grit to grind the food, the natural supply being inadequate or inferior. Rice table scraps will make hens over-fat and have a tendency to cause hens to lay soft-shelled eggs.—Farmers' Home Journal.

The Horse that Pulls on His Bit.

It is claimed by one who has tried it that a driving horse that pulls on the bit can be cured by fastening a small ring on each side of the bridle and as near the brow band as possible. Pass the lines through bit rings and snap them into the rings at the brow band. This, with a common jointed bit, will enable a child to hold a "puller" or hard-mouthed horse with ease under almost all circumstances. It can be used on a fast horse in double team or on both, as desired. It is cheap and easily applied and it won't make the mouth sore.

How to Raise a Barn.

A farmer near Goliad had a novel experience. A few years ago he built a small barn, and in the construction used green willow posts at the corners and along the sides. For some time nothing unusual was noticed, but after a year he saw that where he had laid the floor near the ground it was three feet above soil. He discovered that the willow posts, instead of being dead, were alive, had taken root and were growing. In their upward movement they had carried the barn along. Last spring the barn was on stilts 9 feet high, and he put in a new floor and surrounded the posts with siding, thereby making a two-story affair. There is now a space of 9 inches between the floor and the ground, and the owner expects to have a three-story barn in the course of time.—Goliad. (Texas) Guard.

Value of Potatoes as Food.

According to statistics obtained, it appears that potatoes constitute about 13 per cent of the total food consumed by the average family. They are essentially starchy and eaten alone would furnish a very one-sided badly balanced diet that would prove unwholesome to most people. As indicated in the illustration the edible portion, is made up of 78.3 per cent water, 18.4 per cent carbohydrates (principally starch), 2.2 per cent protein, 0.1 per cent fat, and 1 per cent ash or mineral matter. These figures represent general averages from which there are wide variations in individual specimens. When potatoes are eaten with meat, eggs, or fish, which are essentially nitrogenous foods, a well-balanced diet is obtained.

COMPOSITION OF THE POTATO. A, fat; b, crude fibre and other carbohydrates exclusive of starch; c, protein; d, ash.

Salt for Cows.

A supply of salt available whenever the cow wants it is necessary to maintain a high milk yield. Salt stimulates the appetite and assists digestion and assimilation, which increase the flow of the fluids of the body. Salting feeds for dairy cows once a week is not sufficient. It is a good plan to keep rock salt under shelter where the cows can get it at will and then feed loose salt once a week in such quantities as the cows will eat. Loose salt may be used exclusively if it can be sheltered from rain. Do not mix salt with feed, for frequently cows get more salt than they need, which will reduce the flow of milk. Cows having salt kept before them at all times in separate compartments will not eat too much.

How Seeds Are Scattered.

Dr. Howard, secretary of the American Society for the Advancement of Science, writing of the manner in which seeds are carried to great distances by birds, recites an experiment of Darwin which had a curious result. Adhering to the leg of a wounded partridge, Darwin found a ball of earth, weighing six and a half ounces. From the seeds contained in this ball he raised thirty-two plants, belonging to five distinct species.

Wounds on Trees.

No artificial medium can be applied to the surface of a tree wound which will induce it to heal more quickly. The activity of the healing process depends upon the character and position and the time of the year when the wound is made, rather than upon protective coverings, but where a large surface of heart wood is exposed it is advisable to protect it from decay by a coat of white lead or other satisfactory covering.

The Potato.

Recently, in Hartz, Germany, a monument was found bearing this inscription: "Here, in the year 1747, the first trials were made with the cultivation of the potato." By the way, when Frederick II. introduced the potato into his domain his subjects did not like it; they refused to be bothered with it, and the emperor had to force them to cultivate it.

How to Grow Peanuts.

Peanuts only thrive in a warm climate. The plant requires a limey, sandy loam, and yields from two bushels of pods planted an acre to as much as 40 or 50 bushels of pods and two tons of straw. The seed is planted about one inch deep in rows from 28 to 36 inches apart, and from 12 to 16 inches in the row.

In Tying Chickens.

When marketing chickens do not tie several of them together. They get the string twisted around their legs and it cuts them. Take the chickens to town in a coop, or some other humane way. They are in absolute torture when several are tied together.

Planting Cowpeas.

Thorough preparation of the soil before planting is as profitable for cowpeas as for any other crop; the greater the care in this respect, the greater the satisfaction and profit in the yield.

WORTH QUOTING

The Albany Journal recommends: Try the beefless dinner as a remedy for the reachless prices.

The scientist who advises us to eat seven times a day is not practical enough to consider the prices of food, laments the Atlanta Constitution.

People who are weighed in the balance and found wanting always complain that the scales are out of order, muses the Philadelphia Record.

All men may be born free and equal, but, interposes the Burlington Hawkeye, no man is as independent as a hired girl.

Europe should not complain of graft, admonishes the Atlanta Constitution, since she extended a warm welcome to so many absconding grafters.

Americans have never learned how to govern a great city, announces the Christian Register. Occasionally an intelligent traveller brings home a few European ideas to be grafted into our inchoate system.

Dr. Wiley's experiments with benzoic acid and benzoate of soda results in the usual demonstration of the deleterious character of chemical mixtures for the preservation of food products.

Germany wants the next Olympic games. How is the Fatherland in the matter of taking a beating with good temper? asks the New York Evening Sun.

Remarks the Baltimore News. It is felt that little headway can be made in staying the progress of tuberculosis until men and women who come into contact with those who suffer from it are brought to know the enormous extent of the plague and realize that they must assist in preventing its progress.

"The man who is happy in his home seldom feels like killing anybody," sagely observes a Texas journal. Now let some statistician ascertain the bearing of murder returns upon the failure of the cook to stay on the job, suggests the Louisville Courier-Journal.

There is just as much chance for the rising generation as there has been for any generation, insists the Detroit Free Press. Give them healthy bodies, well-stocked minds and a determination to succeed, and they will make their place in the world.

The time is past for academic discussion of the benefits accruing from good roads, declares the Denver Republican. What is wanted and what should be forthcoming is a demand that the Legislature provide for the construction of good roads, the States bearing part and local communities their share of the burden of cost.

So the time seems to have come, observes the Christian Register, when elderly people, at least, will turn back for summer reading to the books of their youth, for an old-fashioned sensation—a style they loved long ago in the fifties or seventies of the last century—George Eliot's earlier productions, Trollope's clerical stories, Charles Reade's "The Cloister and the Hearth," and others that loom in memory, half forgotten in detail, but vivid in impression. It is good to have forgotten much of the things that once delighted us, for then the rereading is a new experience.

The psychological moment has passed, shouts the New York Herald. The German press has blustered, the French press has recriminated angrily and the British press has tried to put out the fire by industriously pouring petroleum on it, but the Moroccan negotiations have continued the even tenor of their way calmly, peacefully, soporifically for more than two years. Every now and again the Kaiser cannot resist the temptation to stir up negotiations a little, but by the time he has got them well stirred up his interest in the amusement has evaporated, some other glittering object has caught his eye and the situation is saved, and the Moroccan pot, which appeared to be on the point of boiling over, simmers down again.

O. Henry's Promise.

O. Henry, the well known story writer, once promised the editor of a magazine that he would deliver a short story to him on the following Monday. Several Mondays passed, but the muse was refractory and the story was not forthcoming. At last the wrathful editor wrote this note:

"My Dear O. Henry: If I do not receive that story from you by 12 o'clock today, I am going to put on my heaviest soled shoes, come down to your house, and kick you downstairs. I always keep my promises."

Whereupon O. Henry sat down and wrote this characteristic reply:

"Dear Sir: I, too, would keep my promises, if I could fulfil them with my feet."—Success Magazine.

15 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

Burning, Painful Sores on Legs—Tortured Day and Night—Tried Many Remedies to No Avail—Cured by Cuticura.

"After an attack of rheumatism, running sores broke out on my husband's legs, from below the knees to the ankles. There are no words to tell all the discomforts and great suffering he had to endure night and day. He used every kind of remedy and three physicians treated him, one after the other, without any good results whatever. One day I ordered some Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent. He began to use them and in three weeks all the sores were dried up. The burning fire stopped, and the pains became bearable. After three months he was quite well. I can prove this testimonial at any time. Mrs. V. V. Albert, Upper Frenchville, Me., July 21, 1907."

Up-to-Date.

The smooth-tongued book agent was selling the old farmer a huge dictionary.

"But, look here, young man," protested the farmer, "there don't seem to be any appendix in this here dictionary. All the dictionaries I ever saw had an appendix."

The wily book agent thought a minute and then said:

"Why, my dear sir, this is the latest dictionary. Every late dictionary has the appendix removed."

And the old farmer was satisfied and bought the big book at once.

KEPT GETTING WORSE.

Five Years of Awful Kidney Disease.

Nat Anderson, Greenwood, S. C., says: "Kidney trouble began about five years ago with dull backache, which got so severe in time that I could not get around. The kidney secretions became badly disordered and at times there was almost a complete stop of the flow. I was examined again and again and treated to no avail and kept getting worse. I have to praise Doan's Kidney Pills for my final relief and cure. Since using them I have gained in strength and flesh and have no sign of kidney trouble."

Accounting for Disease.

Boston children are sometimes credited with vast stores of knowledge, but one twelve-year-old girl of that city has apparently neglected her opportunities. A traveling circus was putting up its tents in the environs of Boston, when a young girl approached the leopard's cage, put her hand between the bars to stroke the animal's head and as a result was badly scratched and bitten.

One of her companions hurried home to tell of the accident, and concluded her story with:

O, mother, do you suppose Annie will have leprosy now?"

Another story is told of an elderly woman, also of Boston, who told her neighbor that she had suffered from gastritis for nearly a year, and that the only way that she could account for it was that the sitting-room coal stove leaked gas in a dreadful way.

She Wasn't Skeptical.

PUZZLE SOLVED.

Coffee at Bottom of Trouble.

It takes some people a long time to find out that coffee is hurting them.

But when once the fact is clear, most people try to keep away from the thing which is followed by ever-increasing detriment to the heart, stomach and nerves.

"Until two years ago I was a heavy coffee drinker," writes an Ill. stockman, "and had been all my life. I am now 56 years old."

"About three years ago I began to have nervous spells and could not sleep nights, was bothered by indigestion, bloating, and gas on stomach affected my heart."

"I spent lots of money doctoring—one doctor told me I had chronic catarrh of the stomach; another that I had heart disease and was liable to die at any time. They all died me until I was nearly starved, but I seemed to get worse instead of better."

"Having heard of the good Postum had done for nervous people, I discarded coffee altogether and began to use Postum regularly. I soon got better and now, after nearly two years, I can truthfully say I am sound and well."

"I sleep well at night, do not have the nervous spells and am not bothered with indigestion or palpitation. I weigh 32 pounds more than when I began Postum, and am better every way than I ever was while drinking coffee. I can't say too much in praise of Postum, as I am sure it saved my life." "There's a Reason."

Who bides his time—he tastes the sweet
Of honey in the saltiest tear,
And, though he fares with slowest feet,
Joy runs to meet him, drawing near,
The birds are heralds of his cause,
And, like a never ending rhyme,
The roadsides bloom in his applause
Who bides his time.

Who bides his time and fevers not
In the hot race that none achieves Shall wear cool wreathen laurel, wrought
With crimson berries in the leaves,
And he shall reign a goodly king
And sway his hand o'er every clime,
With peace writ on his signet ring,
Who bides his time.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE LORD OUR SHEPHERD; Ps. 23.

GOLDEN TEXT:—The Lord is my shephere; I shall not want.—
Ps. 23

(Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.)

How beautiful the description of David in I Sam. xxiii, 1, "David the son of Jesse, the man who was raised up on high, the anointed of the God of Jacob, and the sweet psalmist of Israel," and notice in verse 2 from whence he received his messages, "The spirit of the Lord spake by me, and His word was in my tongue." The tongue and the pen were David's, but the messages were the Lord's by His spirit. See also Ex. iv, 12; Jer. i, 7-9; Ezek. iii, 10, 11; John xii, 49, and note how the prophets and even our Lord Himself received their messages from God the Father. The spirit of Christ in the prophets had mainly a twofold theme, the suffering of Christ and the glory that should follow (I Pet. i, 11), and in no psalm are these more fully set forth than in Ps. xxii, written as if by an eyewitness and giving some of the very words He uttered on the cross (verse 1), yet pointing on to His resurrection kingdom and glory, saying, "The kingdom is the Lord's, and He is the governor among the nations" (verse 28).

The psalm for today seems to refer to the millennial glory of Israel and yet was the personal experience of David and may be that of each individual believer. David knew well the life of a shepherd and what it meant to care kindly for the sheep, and even to put his life in danger for them, as when he delivered one of his lambs from a lion and a bear and slew them both (I Sam. xviii, 34-36). As he thought of his care of his flock he could look up to the living God, the Lord of hosts, and say, "Jehovah is my shepherd," and as he knew that his sheep were safe and well cared for under his watchful care, so he was sure that he was even better cared for by his shepherd, the stone of Israel (Gen. xlix, 24; Ps. lxxx, 1). Hear the Lord's own words in this connection in John x, 11: "I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep." Think of Him also as great shepherd living in us and working in us to will and to do of His good pleasure (Heb. xlii, 20, 21). Then see (I Pet. v, 1-4) where as the chief shepherd He will reward those who for Him feed His flock. All the blessedness comes from being able to say My Shepherd.

We may know all the facts about Him and believe all that He says He is and has done and will do, but if there is no personal appropriation there is no benefit. The soul must be able to say My Redeemer, My Lord, My Shepherd. Then we can rest in Rom. viii, 32, and know of a surety that we shall not want, for there is no want to them that fear Him and live uprightly before Him (Ps. xxxiv, 9, 10; lxxxiv, 11). Lying down is restful, and green pastures speak of satisfaction; satisfied and restful. He satisfieth the hungry soul. There is such a thing as abiding satisfied (Prov. xix, 23), and yet there is a satisfaction that will be only when we awake in His likeness (Ps. xvii, 15). In Him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead (Col. i, 19; ii, 9), and if we are not filled full in Him the difficulty is with us and not with Him. Not only rest and fullness, but quietness of soul, is ours also in Him (verse 2, margin). He is "The Lord our Righteousness" (Jer. xxiii, 6), and the work of righteousness is peace, and the service of righteousness is quietness and assurance forever. When He giveth quietness, who then can make trouble? (Isa. xxxii, 17; Job xxxiv, 29.) Like sheep we are prone to wander, and straying sheep must be sought, for they do not return of their own accord; therefore David said, "I have gone astray like a lost sheep. Seek thy servant" (Ps. cxli, 176).

His sheep can never perish, but may lose the joy of salvation; hence the prayer, "Restore unto me the joy of Thy salvation" (John x, 28; Ps. li, 12). Being righteousness itself, He can lead only in paths of the same, and this He does, as He does all else, not for our sakes, but for His Name's sake (verse 3; I John ii, 12; Ezek. xxxvi, 22). Let us say: "Lord, I place my hand in Thine and will not murmur nor repine. Content whatever I see, since 'tis my God that leadeth me." Our whole life here is lived in the shadow of death, for it is always true as David said elsewhere, "There is but a step between me and death" (I Sam. xx, 3). But He is with us every day and all the way, and nothing can touch us unless He permit it, and if He allows death to touch us it will be a gain, a very far better "absent from the body," present with the Lord."

A table in the presence of his enemies was many a time David's experience while fleeing from Saul and Absalom. It will be Israel's in millennial days. It will be ours as far as we need it, and it is for God's glory. Our future as believers is all told in verse 6. God is love, and love is kind, and therefore He cannot permit anything that is not loving kindness as He sees it, however it may look to us. Here we may dwell in Him and He in us (John xiv, 23; xvii, 23; II Cor. vi, 16-18), and by and by it will be for every child of God "forever with the Lord," and with Him on His throne (I Thess. iv, 17; Rev. iii, 21). May we ever hear His voice as in Isa. xliii, 1, 2; xlviii, 17; John xiv, 27).

What Would You Do?

In case of a burn or scald—what would you do to relieve the pain? Such inquiries are liable to occur in any family and everyone should be prepared for them. Chamberlain's Salve applied on a soft cloth will relieve the pain almost instantly, and unless the injury is a very severe one, will cause the parts to heal without leaving a scar. For sale by C. W. Milhouse.

Serious Loss to Village.

Winslow, Ind., Nov. 13.—Fire practically wiped out the business part of the town of Spurgeon, ten miles south of here, near the Pike county line. The loss, estimated at $22,000, embraces nearly every business house in the town. The burned property was insured for less than one-quarter of its value. The town has a population of 500.

How to Treat a Sprain.

Sprains, swellings and lameness are promptly relieved by Chamberlain's Pain Balm. This liniment reduces inflammation and soreness so that a sprain may be cured in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by C. W. Milhouse.

Suit will be brought in the circuit court by the Republican county committee, on behalf of all the Republican county candidates, for the opening up of the voting machines and a recount of the entire vote in Marion county for all candidates.

Sick Headache.

This distressing disordered condition of the stomach, can be cured by taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Get a free sample at C. W. Milhouse's drug store.

FINANCIER ARRESTED

It Is Charged He is Behind in Guardianship Accounts.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 13.—Murray A. Verner, until recently considered one of the city's wealthy men, and for a number of years a prominent personage in political and financial circles, was arrested in connection with the settlement of the accounts as guardian of his nephew, Alexander L. Verner, to whom, it is alleged, there is due $37,247.77.

Besides the claim of his nephew and ward, it is charged that judgments of other creditors amounting to $105,000 have been allowed to accumulate. Mr. Verner's attorneys announce that arrangements are being completed to satisfy all claims and that he will shortly be released and all proceedings stopped.

They Have No Kick Coming.

Washington, Nov. 13.—The wave of prohibition which it is claimed has spread over the country, apparently has had little effect on consumption of alcoholic liquors and spirituous drinks, according to evidence brought out at the hearing on the proposed tariff revision before the house committee on ways and means. It was apparent, too, that the liquor interests are, on the whole, well satisfied with the present tariff on spirits, wines and other beverages, as the wine growers and importers were the only persons interested at the hearing.

IN MEMORY OF MARTYRED DEAD

Dreadful Incident of Revolution Recalled Today.

SHAFT TO PRISON SHIP VICTIMS

One of the Last Works of the Late Stanford White Was the Designing of This Noble Doric Column to Perpetuate the Memory of the Thousands of American Patriots Who Perished Miserably in the Infamous Prison Ship Jersey and Other Ill-Favored British Hulks Lying in East River During the Revolutionary War.

New York, Nov. 15.—Brooklyn today is the scene of a notable gathering of local, state and national celebrities, the occasion being the dedication of the prison ship martyrs' monument. Prominent among the men who are attending the ceremonies are President Elect William H. Taft, Charles E. Hughes, re-elected governor of New York, and Secretary of War Luke E. Wright.

The programme for the unveiling exercises was as follows:

Music by Twenty-third regiment band, T. F. Shannon leader, closing with "The Star Spangled Banner," all standing.

Prayer, the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

Poem, Thomas Walsh.

Oration, Hon. William H. Taft.

Presentation of monument on behalf of the national government by Secretary of War Luke E. Wright.

Acceptance on behalf of the State by Governor Charles E. Hughes.

Acceptance on behalf of the city by the chairman of the board of aldermen, Patrick F. McGowan.

Address on behalf of the Tammany society or Columbian order by Daniel P. Cohalan, grand sachein.

A long military parade marched through the streets of Brooklyn, and many of the houses in the borough were decorated with the national colors.

The prison ship martyrs' monument is intended to perpetuate the memory of the patriots whose unhappy fate it was during the American Revolution to be captured by the British and confined in the Jersey and other hulks of infamous memory lying in the East river. Hundreds died of disease contracted during such confinement, and starvation claimed many of the others. There is a monument to the memory of the martyrs in Trinity churchyard, Manhattan, but it has long been felt that it is inadequate.

The Prison Ship Martyrs' Monument Association of the United States was incorporated in 1903 to procure money for the monument. Toward the work the national government donated $100,000, the state of New York contributed $50,000 and the city gave $25,000, the remainder being supplied by popular subscriptions by Brooklynites. The Tammany society has been active in procuring funds for the monument.

The monument, an imposing Doric column of granite 270 feet high, surmounted by a funeral urn and flag-staff, was designed by the late Stanford White and cost a little over $200,000. The cornerstone laying took place on Saturday, Oct. 26, 1907, Governor Hughes, Major General Frederick Dent Grant, Stephen V. White, Stephen M. Griswold and many others taking part in the ceremonies.

The Unionist party carried all the seven districts of Porto Rico.

GRIM SIGHT FOR LAMPHERE JURY

Relics of the Gunness Horror Displayed in Court.

PROSECUTION IS SATISFIED

Despite the Fact That the Court Instructed the Jury to Disregard the Coroner's Verdict as Proof That It Was Mrs. Gunness's Body That Was Found in Ruins of Home, the State Is Satisfied That It Has Presented Circumstantial Evidence Pointing Conclusively to Such Identity of the Body.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 14.—The state is well satisfied with the evidence which was presented for the purpose of proving that the four bodies removed from the ruins of the Gunness house on April 28 were those of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her three children, although Judge Richter permitted the coroner's verdict to go before the jury and later informed the jurors that they should disregard the verdict as being proof of the death of Mrs. Gunness. The prosecution is getting before the jury the evidence contained in the report and upon which Coroner Mack based his conclusion and verdict that the adult female body was that of Mrs. Belle Gunness and that the smaller bodies were those of her three children.

The exhibits of the day included the rings taken from the fingers of Mrs. Gunness and the children, a piece of cloth found clenched in the hand of one of the children, three pieces of bone, identified by Coroner Mack Sheriff Smutzer and Drs. Long, Wilcox and Gray, and photographs of the scenes of the burned house and the bodies.

Sheriff Smutzer on the witness stand described in detail the positions in which the bodies were found in the ruins, the fact that underneath them was debris of considerable thickness and he swore to the removal of the rings from the fingers of the bodies. He testified to having known Mrs. Gunness when she was alive, and stated that she had been in his office three or four times when he was sheriff.

Dr. Long conducted the autopsy on the younger girl and on the stand he described the condition of the burned body and testified that he found holes in the skulls of two of the children. He could not say what had caused these holes. He also on cross-examination testified that the hands of the girl on whom he held the autopsy were clenched, and admitted that this is one of the symptoms where death is caused by strychnine. The testimony of Dr. J. L. Gray, who conducted the autopsy on the body of the adult female, declared by the state to be that of Mrs. Belle Gunness, proved of material value to the state.

Dr. Gray testified that the head of the body was missing and the upper vertebrae down to the seventh cervical were also gone. The left arm was burned to the upper third. The right arm was disconnected at the shoulder. The right leg was burned off at the knee. The left leg was burned off at the ankle and most of the flesh to the knees was burned away. An adult right arm was with the body. The fingers were tightly clenched. In this hand was a piece of cloth. There was a band ring on the second right hand finger. On the left third finger there was a small diamond ring with the inscription inside "P. S. to J. S., Aug. 27, '94."

Dr. Gray identified the heel bone and the lower jaw bone and testified that they came from a human being an adult. He also testified that with the body were parts of a felt mattress remnants of a child's night-dress, lace collar, etc., part of boy's union suit and underwear, piece of fleece-lined underwear, all badly charred and burned. These were then introduced in evidence and identified.

Dr. Gray stated that he believed that in life the person had weighed 200 pounds. This was about the weight of Mrs. Gunness.

LOOKS MIGHTY GOOD

Bradstreet's Report Today Is Full of Encouragement.

New York, Nov. 14.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today says: Expansion continues in trade and industrial lines, shipments over the rail ways are increasing, idleness is being diminished, prices in numerous lines are higher, collections are better, and sentiment is brighter than it has been for twelve months past. Spring business is also developing quite freely, although widespread improvement in this direction is not looked for until after the turn of the new year.

Quick to Resent Insult.

Cienfuegos, Nov. 14.—Gonzalo Garcia Vieta, a Conservative, former mayor of Cienfuegos, last night shot and killed Eduardo Prieto, a Liberal. Vieta alleges that Prieto insulted and attacked him. It is not known whether the quarrel had its origin in politics.

How to Cure a Cold.

Be careful as you can you will occasionally take cold, and when you do, get a medicine of known reliability, one that has an established reputation and that is certain to effect a quick cure. Such a medicine is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It has gained world wide reputation by its remarkable cures of this most common ailment, and can always be depended upon. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. During the many years in which it has been in general use we have yet to learn of a single case of cold or attack of the grip having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used, which show conclusively that it is a certain preventive of the dangerous disease. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by C. W. Milhouse.

Gompers Again Agitated.

Denver, Col., Nov. 13.—At the close of yesterday's session of the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, President Samuel Gompers, in thanking the speakers of the day, said that he had heard since coming to Denver that it was intended by the present session of congress to pass a bill amending the Sherman anti-trust law in a way detrimental to the labor movement. He said if such an attempt was made he would fight it in the halls of congress.

Colds and Croup in Children.

SEATTLE complains that boys shoot quail within the corporate limits.
Perhaps the town has emulated Chicago in annexing outlying territory until coon hunts are among the city recreations.

THE troubles of Thos. R. Marshall have just begun. Hundreds of men have already applied for positions under his administration and scores of new ones come in every day. All of them say they were original Marshall men.

THE San Francisco lawyer, F. J.
Heney, who has been a vigorous prosecutor in the San Francisco graft cases, was shot and seriously wounded in the court room there Friday.
The one who shot him was a man who had been relieved from jury service because he is an ex-convict.

THE democratic leaders had a conference at Indianapolis Friday and decided that the first thing to do when the legislature convenes is to reopen the county local option law. Stokes Jackson, the democratic state chairman, told the assembled democrats that the election of Mr. Marshall was a popular verdict against local option and that the legislature should act accordingly. Such a program will be no surprise to the people for everybody understood the alignments of the democrats in the campaign just closed.

THE REPUBLICAN will be ready before many days to tell you what merchants are handling new and novel lines for the holiday trade. The holiday trade in this city for the past few years has increased enormously and the REPUBLICAN has done its part to make it so. The business men of the city and the purchasers have profited by it. This paper has done much on its own accord and has charged a very reasonable rate for space in consideration of its large circulation. We have today the largest circulation both on the Daily and the Weekly editions that this or any other paper has ever had in the county. Our best business men study their advertising carefully and put their money where they get the best returns. You will find the best of everything advertised in the REPUB-LICAN. Keep an eye on our advertising columns.

Rev. Philip Schmidt was a passenger to Indianapolis today where he will deliver one of the addresses Sunday at a mission feast at one of the German Lutheran churches in that city.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Rust will be conducted at the Central Christian church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev.
Harley Jackson. Burial at Riverview cemetery.

T. S. Bliss was a passenger to Indianapolis shortly afternoon today.

Words of Praise

For the several ingredients of which Dr.
Pierce's medicines are composed, as given by leaders in all the several schools of medicine, should have far more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has the badge of HONESTY on every bottle-wrapper, in a full list of all its ingredients printed in plain English.

If you are an invalid woman and suffer from frequent headache, backache, gnawing distress in stomach, periodical pains, disagreeable, catarrhal, pelvic drain, dragging down distress in lower abdomen or pelvis, perhaps dark spots or specks dancing before the eyes, faint spells and kindred symptoms caused by female weakness, or other derangement of the feminine organs, you can not do better than take
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The hospital, surgeon's knife and operating table may be avoided by the timely use of "Favorite Prescription" in such cases. Thereby the obnoxious examinations and local treatments of the family physician can be avoided and a thorough course of successful treatment carried out in the privacy of the home. "Favorite Prescription" is composed of the very best native medicinal roots known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments, contains no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs.

Do not expect too much from "Favorite Prescription"; it will not perform miracles; it will not dissolve or cure tumors.
No medicine will. It will do as much to establish vigorous health in most weaknesses and ailments peculiarly incident to women as any medicine can. It must be given a fair chance by perseverance in its use for a reasonable length of time.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this remedy of known composition.

Sick women are invited to consult by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres.,

REORGANIZATION PLANS

Already Party Leaders Are Talking of Taking a New Start.

Indianapolis, Nov. 14.—It was rumored here today that ex-Governor Winfield T. Durbin may be a candidate to succeed James P. Goodrich as chairman of the Republican state committee. He is willing to accept the position. He is regarded by many of the party leaders as the most available chairmanship timber, and a movement has been started looking to his election. Mr. Goodrich will not be a candidate for another term, and the party will be canvassed for an efficient organizer to succeed him. It is too early to predict any man's election with certainty, but undoubtedly there is a sentiment in favor of ex-Governor Durbin that is too strong to be overlooked.
There is a feeling among the Republican leaders that the work of reorganizing the party should not be long delayed. The party is noted for its recuperative powers, and it is believed by the leaders that painstaking attention to details will soon enable the party organization, which was routed by the recent Democratic victory, to recover from the losses of Nov. 3.

The editors who attended the meeting of the State Democratic Editorial association here yesterday afternoon were A. D. Moffett of Elwood, Lew M.
O'Bannon of Corydon, W. M. Moss of Linton, Isaac Strauss of Rockville,
Frank D. Haimbaugh of Muncie, J. O.
Behymer of Tipton, W. S. Chambers of Newcastle, A. N. Crecraft of Franklin, W. B. Westlake of Marion, S. Paul Poynter of Sullivan, Clay Metsker of Plymouth and Editor Simons of Monticello. The primary object of the meeting was to arrange for the semi-annual business meeting and banquet of the association, which, it was agreed, will take place in this city next February. The association will convene on the first Thursday in February. That night the banquet will take place and on the following day the business sessions will be concluded. A program was prepared with Thomas R. Marshall, Robert J. Alez and Mrs. Isaac R. Strauss (Country Contributor) among the stellar attractions. It also was agreed that the United States senator-elect, whoever he may be, will have a place on the program, but a blank space was left for his name, and no one tried to make even a remote guess as to whose name will fill the space.

that the people turn aside from their
"busy and complex life" and acknowledge the "tender mercies and the un-

How Two Girls Solved the Light Housekeeping Problem.

"I'm spoiled for housekeeping," announced the bachelor girl just returned from a year abroad. "Before this last winter in Paris I used to get my own meals and brush up the crumbs and thank the Lord I had three meals to get. Last winter my chum and I were at the Sorbonne, and it kept us so busy that we didn't have time to wash the dishes. Finally all the dishes in the establishment were standing in the sink, and we couldn't have any more to use until those had been washed, but we didn't have any time to scrub plates. Then the concierge came to the rescue. He sent us a woman who agreed to come and cook breakfast and dinner and wash the dishes and sweep the room at the alarming rate of 6 cents an hour. Chum and I nearly collapsed when we heard that price. We lived in luxury after that.
Susanne did our marketing, cooked and cleaned us up for two hours daily, so that the bill for service came to less than a dollar a week. Besides, what we paid Susanne we made up on the decreased market bills, because she could buy so much more cheaply than we could. I don't doubt that even then she had her little commission from the butcher and the grocer. Susanne made a regular profession of this meal getting for American students. A Minneapolis girl had her for breakfast at 7, we had her at 8, and an art student from Boston who lived across the street had her at 9. Just how she arranged the various dinners so they didn't collide I never did discover, for most Americans, no matter when they breakfast, insist on dining just about 6. However, that was Susanne's secret. Goodness knows, if I could find her like I would thankfully eat dinner at any hour from 4 until 8."

Antiquity of "A Regular Shindy."

The antiquity of many familiar terms is surprising when it is known. Many people are not aware that "What the dickens!" occurs in Shakespeare, but fewer still will be prepared to hear that the phrase "A regular shindy" is found in an author's note to a poem called "The Popish Kingdom," published in 1570. A writer quotes this note, which refers to the celebration of Maundy Thursday, "Midnight services are held in church, the lights are put out, and a regular shindy follows, men being beaten and wounded."—London Globe.

Appearances Were Deceptive

IT was high noon when he entered the crowded restaurant. He stood fully 6 feet 3 inches in height, was built in proportion, and must have weighed at least 250 pounds. As he strode down between the rows of tables he looked as if he could eat up the house. He took a seat beside a diminutive fussy little man with a bald head and chop whiskers, who was bravely and successfully polishing off a sirloin steak, with onions. The little fellow, with his napkin tightly wedged under his chin and his mouth full of dinner, looked up in wonder at his gigantic side-partner, and then down at the frail, cane-bottom chair, which creaked and groaned piteously under its immense weight. But the big fellow took no notice of the little one. When the waitress approached him he gave his order in business-like fashion. "Bring me," he said, in a falsetto voice, "a cup of weak tea and a couple of doughnuts."—New York World.

Effects of Beer Drinking On German Children

By Dr. Henry Smith-Williams.

SOME doubly significant observations as to the practical effects of beer and wine in dulling the faculties were made by Bayer, who investigated the habits of 591 children in a public school in Vienna. These pupils were ranked by their teachers into three groups, denoting progress as "good," "fair" or "poor" respectively. Bayer found, on investigation, that 134 of these pupils took no alcoholic drink; that 164 drank alcoholics very seldom; but that 219 drank beer or wine once daily; 71 drank it twice daily; and three drank it with every meal. Of the total abstainers, 42 per cent. ranked in the school as "good," 49 per cent. as "fair" and 9 per cent. as "poor." Of the occasional drinkers, 34 per cent. ranked as "good," 57 per cent. as "fair" and 9 per cent. as "poor." Of the daily drinkers, 28 per cent. ranked as "good," 58 per cent. as "fair" and 14 per cent. as "poor." Those who drank twice daily ranked 25 per cent. "good," 58 per cent. "fair" and 18 per cent. "poor." Of the three who drank thrice daily, one ranked as "fair" and the other two as "poor." Statistics of this sort are rather tiresome; but these will repay a moment's examination. As Aschaffenburg, from whom I quote them, remarks, detailed comment is superfluous; the figures speak for themselves.—McClure's.

What Is Socialism?

Debs Calls It the Next Natural Stage in the Evolution of Humanity.

By Lincoln Steffens.

YOU know the old stock definition of Socialism," Debs said. "The co-operative control and the democratic management of the means of production." I'll try another: Socialism is the next natural stage in the evolution of human society; an organization of all men into an ordered, co-operative commonwealth in which they work together, consciously, for a common purpose; the good of all, not of the few, not of the majority, but of all."

"How would that induce the worker to do good work?" I asked. "Well, if there were no inspiration in the idea of a common good there would be the assurance of a full return for the product of his labor." "But how could such a complicated system give any such assurance?" "By abolishing capitalists and all non-producers. Men would be paid according to their social use; skill and ability would count, but so would the disagreeableness of a job; to get it done, society would have to make it attractive somehow—with short hours or big pay. For men would be free, you understand; much freer than now, and not only industrially, but politically, intellectually, religiously—every way. We would have no churches; that didn't dare preach Christianity. But the point is that nobody would get such pay as Rockefeller gets now." "But Rockefeller did a service, you say yourself," I retorted, "when he socialized the oil industry." "Yes," said Debs, "but hasn't he been paid enough? A billion, they say. That's too much; but let him have it. All we Socialists say is that he should not be allowed to buy up railroads and mines and natural resources, and neither should oil consumers go on paying his children fortunes for generations. No, we must get rid of the Rockefellers, and keep only the organization they build up."—Everybody's.

Moral Strength Necessary To Victory in War

By Gen. Kuropatkin.

THE recent contest in Manchuria was a popular war for the Japanese, but not for us. The Korean question, and the question of naval supremacy on the waters of the Pacific, involved vital Japanese interests, and the immense importance of these interests was so clearly understood and so fully appreciated by the Japanese people that the war for their protection was a national war. Japanese soldiers, deeply conscious of the bearing that their exploits might have on the future of the country, fought with a self-sacrificing devotion and a stubbornness that we had never seen in any war in which we had previously been engaged. Sometimes, in villages that we had taken by assault, a handful of Japanese soldiers would barricade themselves in native houses and die there rather than retreat or surrender. Japanese officers who fell into our hands—even wounded officers—generally committed suicide. * * * In some cases Japanese mothers even killed themselves, when their sons, on account of weakness or ill-health, were denied admission to the army. Hundreds of men volunteered to undertake the most desperate enterprises, in the face of certain death; and many officers and soldiers, before going to the front, had funeral ceremonies performed over their bodies, in order to show that they intended to die for their native land. * * * Military history shows that, in all wars, the antagonist who is strongest morally wins the victory. The only exceptions are such contests as that between the English and the Boers in South Africa and that between the north and the south in America. The English were weaker than the Boers morally, but they put into the field an overwhelming force, and, in spite of many defeats, they finally conquered. In the American war, the army of the south was in the same position that the Boer army was, and the northerners had to put a superior force into the field in order to overcome it.—McClure's Magazine.

Roof-Dwelling In Algiers.

By Lillian Gilpin.

AMERICANS know what it is to live piled up in apartment-houses, but they are not familiar with the joys of living on each other's roof. I am. As Friday is the Arab holiday, the little sons of the Prophet do not go to school, so of course they fight among themselves; and when the son of wife number one hits the son of wife number two or three, the mothers take part in the fray. No fuss in the Italian quarter of New York between Italian furies can approach the contests I heard down-stairs. Arabic is a wonderful language; it is full of "r's" and "ch's" and when uttered with murderous intent it sounds just like tearing clothes and breaking bones. Up above us was another story; there lived a French woman with a red nose and tearful eyes, mother of I know not how many children, always wailing and lamenting her unfortunate condition. Her husband was a guard at the prison near by, a tall black-mustached, dismal man, ever sorrowfully begetting children, who, borne by a sorrowful mother, could not be other than sinister scarecrows, and such they were. That home was nothing but weeping and gnashing of teeth day in and day out. The other apartments were to let, and remained so all the time we stayed. But I must not forget to mention the crowning glory of the citadel; the landlord lived on the culminating terrace, whence he could oversee all his dominions. He was an Alsatian, had served in the zouaves, and was a retired pensioner with a medal and a wife. She was a Spaniard, a misanthropic virago, always draped in black, crepe even on her hat, the mourning of her wrecked life it appears; for the last fifteen years she and her husband had occupied each a separate little pavilion on that high terrace, each doing separate cooking and housework. There was also a one-eyed old witch who officiated as janitor; this one at least upheld our prestige in the neighborhood. Our landlord did not, because we failed to appreciate his pottering, fiddle-faddling, patching, painting, repairing and spolling of everything.—Harper's Weekly.

The Clyde shipbuilding yards produced 509 vessels during 1907, as compared with 372 the previous year. A $20,000,000 terminal station has been planned for the steam, electric and subway lines of San Francisco.

Child Buried Alive

To Guard a Dam, According to an Old Mexican Superstition.

After a day on the plantation Simpson discovered that the late proprietor had tarried on his property but two months, then placed it in the hands of his agent to dispose of at any price. And incidentally Simpson found that the late proprietor was the fourth for that year; he decided to investigate.

He was returning late one afternoon from the cane fields along the river which ran through a part of his plantation. His horse was one of the best—and the trail through the fields was in good condition, but it was a long ride, and he knew it would be after dark before he reached his hacienda house. Already the shadows were stealing through the twilight, drawing down the curtain of darkness which precedes the play of the moonlight. Suddenly he stopped, halted his horse with a sharp check and listened. No, it was nothing, and yet he could have sworn that he heard a cry of distress.

He spurred his horse on—then, there it was again—to the right, Low, like a dying moan, it stole over his senses; he first felt it in his finger tips, then it crept cautiously up his arms—his heart stopped still. He shivered, though the air was warm.

Involuntarily he checked his horse again, and listened. No—it was not a woman's cry; it was not mature, though it was not like that of any child he had ever heard. The cry was low and weak, weird and plaintive, though it was incessant and seemed to have a supernatural strength in its weakness.

Simpson glanced around and saw that he was in a washout which was probably an arroyo during the rainy season; it was not very wide or deep. He peered through the dim light to his right and saw at some distance away what appeared to be a black wall; on riding nearer he perceived that it was the ruin of an old reservoir dike, built out of big blocks of stone. He did not ride around to see whether or not the reservoir was dry, but from the crumbling condition of the dike he decided that it was. And all the while the low cry continued, insistent, like a sob which will not be choked down. It seemed to come from the wall of the reservoir.

It was just three days later when, without any apparent warning of the coming catastrophe, there was a cloudburst up the mountains. The little streams, swollen with the heavy rains, rushed down the mountain sides like mighty rivers. It was the worst flood in years. The valley was veiled in tears, and the only sign of Simpson's plantation was the spot where his house ought to have been.

Like the true optimist that he was, Simpson was delighted to discover himself safely sitting on top of some floating wreckage. He rightly reasoned that it was a wonder he was on top, and not in a watery grave under his household furniture.

But Simpson thought nothing in particular of a strange sight which surprised him as he drifted down stream for the low hills to the south. The dead body of an infant in a perfect state of preservation passed him, floating with the wreckage, drowned men, women and cattle. It was the unclothed body of a baby girl. She floated by him, her hair stringing in wet strands behind her. In one hand she clutched a tortilla; in the other a piece of piloncillo.

Years ago the poor peons of the hacienda thought that an infant, inclosed alive in the wall of a reservoir or the dam of a stream, would give warning with cries at any approaching danger—such as a storm or a flood. So it was considered a commendable act for a peon mother to sacrifice her child, and such a sacrifice was not without mercy. A tortilla in one hand and a piece of brown sugar in the other—these were supposed to sustain the little one so that it would have sufficient strength to cry out in time of danger. Then the wall was completed—the baby boy or girl being buried alive.

In the course of time—say, forty or fifty years—the wall of the reservoir might crumble in places, though the part protecting the tomb might perfectly preserve the body of the infant. Should a flood or storm of sufficient danger be imminent the departed spirit of the infant might give warning with cries of distress and these cries might be heard by some one in passing. Should a flood finally come and wash away the crumbling tomb of the infant the drifting body might be seen by the same one who heard the cries—but who would believe the tale?—Modern Mexico.

COMPULSORY INSURANCE.

The Part Played By the Government in the System Germany Uses.

"The idea that the German associations for insuring workmen are managed by bureaucrats sitting in heavily upholstered and red-tape-embroidered offices in Berlin is completely wrong," says William Hard, in Everybody's. "All that the government does under the German system is this (and here is the gist of the whole Compulsory Insurance idea):

"The government takes each industry and each trade in the empire and says to the people who own it:

"You must form an accident-insurance association which will include all the employers in your industry and in your trade. And you must pay compensation to all your injured workmen according to a fixed scale. We won't stop to try to divide the blame for accidents between you and your workmen. We will assume for practical purposes that you weren't trying to commit murder and that they weren't trying to commit suicide. We will assume that accidents are accidents. And we will make each trade bear the burden of its own accidents. We will make each trade add the cost of its burned-out eyesockets to the cost of its burned-out coal-grates in computing the market-price of its product. So you must form your accident-insurance association in your industry and in your trade, and you must pay your injured workmen the compensation fixed by law. But that's where we stop. Everything else rests with you. Go ahead and elect your own officers and fix your own details to suit yourselves. Invent your own safety-devices. Adopt your own shop rules. Employ your own factory inspectors. Engage your own doctors. Build your own hospital. Do all, or none, of these things, as you please. Profit by your own wisdom and your own humanity in preventing accidents and incurring their consequences. Lose money by your own inefficiency and your own cruelty in letting accidents happen and in neglecting injured workmen. All that we insist upon is that your trade shall carry its own load of the wounded and the slain. This is not bureaucracy. This is not paternalism. It is trade responsibility. It is trade self-government."

Little Prince Olaf's Island.

The story of Sunbeam Island, which an English lady, Miss Ada Musgrove, has presented to the little Crown Prince Olaf of Norway, is one of curious interest. Sunbeam Island, or Fortin Bras, as it is now going to be called, is about 20,000 square yards in size, and is situated in the lovely Godo Sound, a famous summer resort, three hours sail from Bergen. About fifteen years ago Mr. John Musgrove, an Englishman, spent the summer at Godo Sound and bought the island, which was then a complete wilderness. He imported new turf mould and worked hard until the island had a wood of about 12,000 trees. He also built a comfortable roomy house and a small water works. The garden of the house is beautifully arranged with small ponds and greens. Mr. Musgrove lived with a relative on this fairy island, the views from which are so impressive and romantic, until a few years ago, when he presented the property to Miss Ada Musgrove. Miss Musgrove wrote to Queen Maud and asked her permission to give the island to her son, and on their majesties' visit to Bergen the necessary documents, as well as a series of pictures of the island photographed by Miss Musgrove herself, were delivered to the queen.—Manchester Mail.

Newport a Deserted Village.

Many of the women who pine for a return of the lively days of a few years ago have begun to call Newport "The Deserted Village." In one sense there is reason to use the phrase. Things are not as lively as in days when Harry Lehr capered for the wealthy few and also for the multitude. Mrs. Fish has gone. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt has gone. Mrs. Herman Oelrichs has gone and Mrs. Ogden Goeltz entertains only occasionally. The life has been taken out of Newport because there are no recognized leaders to take the place of these brainy women. Mrs. Astor no longer holds sway, and Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont will not be seen there for another twelve months at least. Even marital troubles have taken away Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt for the summer, and few of the "old guard" are left. Of course, all the social climbers are there—they increase steadily with each year, and it may be that Mrs. Fish is right when she avows the social climber has been the ruin of Newport.—New York Press.

Health and Cowardice.

I had a young friend once who won the Victoria Cross. Well, he was the most absolute (apparent) coward as a child and boy that I ever knew, and yet I am sure it was all due to his physical condition.

I had the greatest trouble to convince his honest martinet of a father that it was simply a matter of health. But I had my way at last, and the boy was practically taught as I advised for five years. He came right out of the shadow, chose the army, to the consternation of his father, and eventually won the cross. There are plenty of physically misunderstood cowards in this world who are not cowards at all.—Fry's Magazine.

The estimated cost of the Roosevelt dam, which is part of the Salt River irrigation scheme, has been cut down by $1,000,000 by the establishment of a Government cement mill on the spot.

The HOME

TURK FOR A HUSBAND.

"When an American woman thinks of a Turk as a husband, she has the horrors, but this is a very wrong impression we have of the Turkish men," remarked Miss Bessie McBride, a St. Louis school teacher, who has been visiting Turkey.

"We have so long been accustomed to look at the Turk as a sort of Bluebeard that it is difficult to realize that in most cases he is a courteous, kindly gentleman, who suffers under great disadvantages, which in many cases he makes heroic efforts to overcome. He treats his wife with affection and respect and does not enter her company without first inquiring if it is her pleasure to receive him.

"The men of the lower classes are also thoughtful and considerate to their wives and daughters, and the many cases of brutal ill treatment of women and children which disgrace English civilization would be looked upon with horror in Turkey.

"In fact, the legal position of the Turkish woman is such a strong one that, though a Turk is allowed four wives, he rarely has more than one, both on account of the expense and also for fear of placing himself at the legal mercy of so many women. He is also most anxious to be considered on a level with the men of other European countries and he is aware that a plurality of wives is a fatal barrier to his ambition in this respect. Monogamy is very surely gaining ground and the harem life is losing its hold on the people. This is especially the case in Constantinople, where the native aristocracy is brought into closer touch with the customs of other races, and there is no doubt that in time it will be a thing of the past."—New York Telegram.

WIDE ROSES ON HATS.

A bride fresh from a honeymoon trip to Europe caused a genuine sensation in a Fifth avenue restaurant by calmly walking in with a rose eight inches in diameter as the chief decoration of a black hat two feet wide. Huge flowers have been the fashion in Paris for a couple of months, and this young woman merely was a forerunner of a fad that, it is believed, will catch every woman this winter. It has been apparent that flowers are to be worn extensively for the next six months, and it seems they will become so popular as to threaten the reign of the ostrich plume. Flowers of mammoth size are to be worn, the latest importations showing roses and dahlias full ten inches wide. Of course these are extremes, but it will be the part of moderation to select a flower large enough in itself to cover the average crown. These giant flowers, set on hats singly, with a leaf and a bud showing, show the perfection to which their manufacture has been brought. The roses are of a bright tint in the centre and are shaded to a deeper color on their outer edges.—New York Press.

SERVICE IN CANADIAN HOMES.

Last summer the Canadian government sent a woman representative, Mrs. Simpson Hayes, to England, to arrange for the emigration of hundreds of gentlemen to Canada. These women go into the homes of the settlers as domestic workers, but are received, it is said, on terms of perfect equality. In fact, the authorities say that only gentlemen are wanted. The girl of the servant class does not seem to fit at all. She is not equal to the unexpected tasks of a pioneer home.

A colonial training farm has been started for would-be emigrants and there they are put through a pretty severe course of training. They learn housework in all its branches. They are taught how to take care of pigs and bees and poultry. They chop wood and they bottle fruit. They cure bacon and they learn to ride and drive. It is hard work, but there is no lack of volunteers, for the new land offers golden prospects to these superfluous women of the old country. As a rule the unfortunate employer does not keep her "lady help" long. There are too many superfluous men in the new country, and it is not unusual for the fair emigrant to receive several offers of marriage before she even reaches her destination.—New York Tribune.

SATIETY.

"I often think of what Herbert Spencer said about amusement," remarked the tired looking woman in the beautiful gown. "He said: 'Though at first you may find amusement dreary and uninteresting, you will in course of time habituate yourself to it and begin to find life more tolerable.'"

"I believe I am getting reconciled to a life spent in the pursuit of amusement, and after a few more years of it I shall cease to feel so bored. The process of getting used to it is tiring, though. I go to teas and meet chattering women whom I don't care about, and smile because smiling is in order, and utter inanities about things in which I am not interested. I go to dinners and sit hours trifling with foods for which I have no digestion, on one side of me a heavy man who knows nothing but stocks and who gobbles, on the other side a dandy whose mind is absorbed in the fit of his coat; I'd much rather be eating a chop and some fruit with one congenial friend; but what will you? I am of the class whose women spend their lives in a round of pleasure, and I suppose I am greatly envied by many not of this class.

"I drive in the Fifth avenue procession when I'd rather be tramping over the hills; I make one of a theatre party to see a mediocre play when I'm longing to stay at home. I—but, dear me!" said the tired looking woman, interrupting herself, "it is time to go home and dress for the Crowdings' reception. I hate receptions, because they're such crushes, and, oh!" she added, kissing the artist friend to whom she had been unbending herself, "how I envy you for having a life of work."—New York Tribune.

THE WORKING WOMAN'S DRESS.

Some women have a great deal of sloppy mussy housework to do. It is a problem how to go well clad and yet accomplish daily toil. In rural places the grass remains wet sometimes until ten a. m. The pesky cows usually kick over milk pail for me when I am pettily dressed. It means a disrobing for flies like sweet milk. Will not country girls tell other girls who read the Indiana Farmer says a "Buckeye Lass" what style of dress seems most suitable for work?

Do not, I pray you suggest the slouchy Mother Hubbard. I wish the designer of this slovenly wrapper were banished! I like tidy wrappers with fitting backs and long aprons as a protection. I also prefer a wide brimmed straw hat rather than a bonnet; it is cooler and one can see better. It has always been my custom to dress for afternoons. My favorite afternoon garb is a pretty skirt and a fancy dressing sacque. The shirtwaist suit is nice but has a habit of coming apart. For winter wear the dressing sacque is often of pretty outing or fancy flannel. Now let the Mollies and Jennies come to the front for advice costs not a cent.—Don't let us wear ugly faded "duds" just because we are at home. Prince Charming often calls unexpectedly.

THE WELL-GROOMED GIRL.

First and foremost she radiates freshness and cleanliness in every part of her being. Even the honest dirt of toil or sport never seems to mar her fundamental cleanliness. Her skin is fresh and clear; there are no pimples or blackheads; she is clean inside and out; good and sufficient evidence not only of at least one daily scrub in hot or cold water, but of a carefully or at least normally regulated diet, and plenty of outdoor exercise. In addition to that she does not disregard a few simple methods of caring for her complexion. She does not go to bed with the pores of her skin filled with the dust of the streets but takes time to cover her face plentifully with cold cream, massaging it slightly, and wiping the dirt off afterward together with the superfluous cream. She is not artificial. She resorts to no paints or cosmetics, but she uses every possible healthful method for keeping her skin in good condition, and does not begrudge the time given to it.—Harper's Bazar.

TO WORK IN INDIA.

Mabel E. Morse decided to abandon society in Haverhill, Mass., for work as a nurse among the women of India. She possesses a fortune, but within a few weeks will start for India, expecting to spend the rest of her life there. Until a year ago she was one of the most popular young women in social circles in Haverhill. She had many admirers, but just when there were whispers of her engagement she surprised relatives and friends by announcing she would enter the Massachusetts General Hospital as a nurse. The only explanation she offered was that she was tired of living only for her own amusement. Her family expected that a few months in the hospital would bring her back to the round of social gayeties, but the work held her interest and led to her determination to go to India. She will go to the native women as a volunteer of the American Board of Foreign Missions, and she has expressed confidence that the glitter of society never will tempt her again.—New York Press.

FASHION NOTES.

Fancy scarfs with fringed ends appropriately trim hats for general wear.

Fringes and embroideries seem to have supplanted lace as a decoration for handsome gowns.

Rich ottoman silk is one of the best regarded of all the hat facings this season.

Sleeves will be practically nil, except for a slight draping of lace, satin or tulle, or chains of mock gems, and the waistline will depend entirely on the choice of the wearer.

Fine flesh colored tulle or net, plain or light hand embroidered, is used for the gumpie and sleeve of many a low cut gown and gives almost the effect of an extreme décolletage.

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health, but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardstow, Ky., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Had Seen His Photograph.

The death of Bishop Potter removed one of the most interesting figures in American church life. Here is a good story of the bishop. One day, as he was waiting for a train at a small country station, he was approached by a rustic passenger who had been scanning his features curiously for a while. "Excuse me, sir," said the stranger, "but your face somehow seems familiar to me. Haven't I seen your portrait in the newspapers?"

The bishop smiled benignly, and replied that it was not unlikely.

"I thought so," continued the other, "and would you mind telling me what you were cured of?"

To a young lady who, apropos the question of Sabbath observance, asked if she might bathe in the Atlantic on Sunday, Bishop Potter replied:

"That, my dear young lady, is a see over which I have no jurisdiction."—Detroit News-Tribune.

A Cure for Hog Cholera.

Hog Cholera or Swine Plague as it is sometimes called is a highly contagious disorder.

When a hog shows any symptoms of this disease, he should be isolated at once and the pen fumigated in order to save the other hogs if possible.

Mix one part Sloan's Liniment with two parts milk in a bottle and give every sick hog a tablespoonful of this mixture night and morning for three days. Sloan's Liniment is a powerful antiseptic, kills the disease germs, soothes all inflammation and acts as a tonic to the animal.

A. J. McCarthy of Idaville, Ind., says: "My hogs had hog cholera three days before we got Sloan's Liniment, which was recommended to me by a neighbor who was using it with success. I have used it now for three days and my hogs are almost well. One hog died before I got the Liniment, but I have not lost any since."

Mr. G. W. Balsbaugh of Peru, Ind., writes: "I had four pigs that were coughing and were not doing well. I gave them some of Sloan's Liniment and they got better at once."

NEW DISTRICTS AND NEW RAILWAYS.

Western Canada Affords Better Conditions than Ever for Settlement.

To the Editor—Sir: Doubtless many of your readers will be pleased to have some word from the grain fields of Western Canada, where such a large number of Americans have made their home during the past few years. It is pleasing to be able to report that generally the wheat yield has been good; it will average about twenty bushels to the acre. There will be many cases where the yield will go thirty-five bushels to the acre, and others where fifty bushels to the acre has been recorded. The oat and barley crop has been splendid. The prices of all grains will bring to the farmers a magnificent return for their labors. An instance has been brought to my notice of a farmer in the Pincher Creek (Southern Alberta) district, where winter wheat is grown, who made a net profit of $19.55 an acre, or little less than the selling price of his land. Thirty, forty and fifty bushels yields are recorded there. The beauty about the lands in Western Canada is that they are so well adapted to grain-raising, while the luxuriant grasses that grow everywhere in abundance makes the best possible feed for fattening cattle or for those used for dairying purposes.

The new homestead regulations which went into force September, 1908, attracted thousands of new settlers. It is now possible to secure 160 acres in addition to the 160 acres as a free grant, by paying $3 an acre for it. Particulars as to how to do this and as to the railway rates can be secured from the Canadian Government agents.

"The development throughout Western Canada during the next ten years will probably exceed that of any other country in the world's history," is not the statement of an optimistic Canadian from the banks of the Saskatchewan, but of Mr. Leslie M. Shaw, of New York, ex-Secretary of the United States Treasury, under the late President McKinley and President Roosevelt, and considered one of the ablest financiers of the United States. "Our railway companies sold a good deal of their land at from three to five dollars an acre, and now the owners are selling the same land at from fifty to seventy-five dollars, and buying more up in Canada at from ten to fifteen."

The editor of the Monticello (Iowa) Express made a trip through Western Canada last August, and was greatly impressed. He says: "One cannot cross Western Canada to the mountains without being impressed with its immensity of territory and its future prospects. Where I expected to find frontier villages there were substantially built cities and towns with every modern convenience. It was formerly supposed that the climate was too severe for it to be thought of as an agricultural country, but its wheat-raising possibilities have been amply tested. We drew from Ontario many of our best farmers and most progressive citizens. Now the Americans are emigrating in greater numbers to Western Canada. Seventy-five per cent of the settlers in that good country located southeast of Moose Jaw and Regina are Americans. Canada is well pleased with them and is ready to welcome thousands more."

Stilted Girls.

In a residence street on Washington Heights, New York, a stranger saw girls walking around on stilts.

"I don't understand this," said the stranger. "When I was a youngster it was the boys who walked on stilts, not the girls."

"All the boys had stilts then, and they used to see how high up on the sticks they could put the blocks and still walk on them, but I never knew a girl to have a pair of stilts."

"Oh, sometimes a girl would borrow a pair of stilts of a boy and try walking on them, but it was the boys who had stilts, not the girls. And now here it is just the other way; it's the girls, not the boys. How do you account for that?"

But the person addressed, being not quite so old as the stranger, and not so well versed in ancient stilt history, could not say.

Reassuring Him.

"Madam," said the guard on the South Side elevated, "this is the smoking car."

"That's all right, conductor," said the self-possessed matron, taking a seat.

"Don't apologize. I know it's dirty, but one can't expect a smoking car to be a front parlor."—Chicago Tribune.

Badly Rattled.

The timid young woman, who had letters of introduction to the great man, had ventured to call.

"You are so busy, judge," she said, "that I—I hesitated about disturbing you. How many—er—days in the work do you week?"

Futile.

Hamlet had finished his soliloquy, and the curious bystanders were waiting to see what he would do next.

"No," they said, at last. "He isn't going to do it. He talks eloquently about committing suicide, but he lacks the sand. Nothing doing."

Thus it appears that the original Hamlet, like all his subsequent imitators, was merely talking for effect.—Chicago Tribune.

SHOT IN COURTROOM

Ex-Convict Takes Bloody Revenge on Prosecutor Heney.

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—Francis J. Heney, a leading figure in the prosecution of municipal corruption in this city, was shot and seriously injured late yesterday afternoon by Morris Haas, a local saloon keeper, who had been accepted as a juror in a previous trial and afterward removed, it having been shown by the prosecution that he was an ex-convict, a fact not brought out in his examination as a venireman.

The shooting occurred in Superior Judge Lawler's courtroom during a recess in the trial of Abraham Ruef, on trial for the third time on the charge of bribery. When Mr. Heney regained consciousness he said: "I will live to prosecute him." The bullet, which entered the right cheek, lodged under the left ear. Haas said he shot Heney because he had ruined him. He is a married man and has four children.

In the second Ruef trial Haas had been passed as a juror, when one day in court Heney dramatically produced a photograph of him taken at San Quentin penitentiary, taken in convict's garb and cropped head and with his number across his breast. Haas collapsed in court, admitted he had been a convict, and was immediately discharged from the jury.

COMING BACK TO SEE TOWN HE ONCE OWNED

Boss Croker Sails Today For Little Old New York.

Queensstown, Ireland, Nov. 14.—Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall, sailed from here today for the United States.

Before sailing he declared that his visit to New York had no connection with politics. He said that he intended to renew old acquaintanceships in New York and return some of the visits that have recently been paid to him at his Irish home, Glencairn castle, near Dublin.

The former Tammany chieftain has aged somewhat (he will be sixty-five years old on Nov. 24), but carries his age easily and looks well. The length of his stay in the United States is uncertain.

No Politics in Croker's Visit.

New York, Nov. 14.—While in New York Richard Croker will stay with his son Richard, who has a home at Port Chester. It is asserted with great emphasis in Democratic circles that there is no politics whatever in the former Tammany chieftain's coming visit. The old Croker guard will give him a big reception down the bay.

Tobacco Schedule Satisfactory.

Washington, Nov. 14.—From the attitude assumed by both Republican and Democratic members of the house ways and means committee at the hearing on the proposed revision of the tariff, it became evident that there is general satisfaction with the present duties on tobacco and tobacco manufactures.

CUBA IS HOLDING ELECTION TODAY

A Free Electorate Choosing a Chief Executive.

MARKED BY PEACE AND QUIET

Due to Precautions Taken by the Provisional Government, the Battle of the Ballots Proceeding on the Island Today Is as Devoid of Violent Expressions as Was That So Recently Engaged in by the Contending Factions of the Great Sister Republic to the North, and a Free Ballot and a Fair Count Is Assured.

Havana, Nov. 14.—Cuba is today following the recent example of her big sister republic to the north in electing a president. Unlike the United States, however, Cuba has only two candidates for the office of chief executive of the island republic. The two aspirants for the presidency of Cuba are General Mario Menocal, candidate of the Conservative party, and General Jose Miguel Gomez, head of the Liberals. Their running mates are respectively Dr. Rafael Montoro and Alfredo Zayas. The nomination of Senor Zayas for the vice presidency is the result of a coalition of the Miguelista and Zayastan factions of the Liberal party, the two men having formerly been bitter political foes. They have buried the hatchet, at least temporarily, in a united attempt to down the common enemy, the Conservatives.

GOVERNOR CHARLES E. MAGOON

There is absolute quiet today throughout Cuba, and the election is being conducted in the most orderly manner. This is due partly to the precautions taken by the provisional American government. Governor Chas. E. Magoon has appointed in command of the rural guards today the American officers who have served as provincial governors.

There is no doubt that absolute fairness characterizes the election, about which every safeguard has been cast by the provisional government, in accordance with an elaborate election law framed by the advisory commission, of which Colonel Crowder is chairman. The balloting is conducted with all the regard for law and order which marked the provincial elections last August. Both of the political leaders have given assurances that they will accept loyally the result of the popular verdict.

There is practically no difference in the platform of the two parties, both having as their chief plank the preservation of the republic, equal rights for all citizens, the encouragement of agriculture and commerce and the maintenance of friendly relations with the United States. The struggle is frankly for the possession of the government and the control of public patronage.

Both General Gomez and General Menocal are veterans of the revolution and have a large following in virtue of their distinguished services in the field. Dr. Montoro is the foremost orator in Cuba and was nominated in the expectation of his being able to control the large Spanish vote, but he is unpopular with many Cubans on account of his attitude during the revolution, when he held office in the autonomous government in the last days of Spanish rule.

Senor Zayas is the idol for a large section of the Liberals. He was the leader of the last uprising against President Tomas Estrada Palma.

The result of the election will perhaps not be known for several days, despite the elaborate arrangements for the prompt forwarding of the returns from 1,498 polling places.

CHINA'S RULER DEAD

With Kwang Hsu's Demise a Three-Year-Old Takes the Throne.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Official notice of the death of the Emperor of China has been received at the state department here and at the Chinese legation. He died suddenly in the imperial palace at Peking. The emperor was but thirty-eight years old, and his health had long been a matter of grave concern to the empire.

During the entire period of his reign his mother, the Dowager Empress Tsu-Hsi, was the virtual ruler and she kept Kwang Hsu, who appears to have been a moral and mental weakling, in the background.

The news of the death of Kwang Hsu was suppressed until after his nephew, Prince Puvi, who is only three years old, was taken into the palace by the dowager empress and installed on the throne. The prince is a son of Prince Chur, brother of the emperor, and was designated recently as the heir presumptive.

Both Engines Turned Turtle.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 14.—Two killed and two fatally hurt and two engines almost completely demolished is the result of a wreck on the Wabash two miles southwest of this city. The dead: H. E. Wolfe, brakeman, Brazil, Ind.; W. B. Williams, fireman, Springfield, Ill. Fatally injured: James Snape, fireman, Springfield; J. W. Troessel, engineer, Clinton, Ill. An eastbound freight, pulling into the ties yards, crashed into a switch engine as the latter was entering the shed of the Black Diamond mine preparatory to placing cars for the coal chute, and both engines turned turtle, carrying with them the firemen, engineers and brakeman.
